

Abbotsford Cove News

Canada Bay Council annually run a “Colour the Bay” competition judged by an independent panel of experts, gardens are assessed on design, layout and maintenance. Winners of each section receive a $500 voucher along with recognition of their efforts. In 2012, Cove resident Elizabeth Duff of Endeavour, was runner up in the “Balcony Garden” section of the competition.

No category for a garden as large as ours? The Garden Committee decided to enter anyway and create awareness of larger gardens in community developments like ours. Hopefully, Council will create an appropriate category next year. Choosing a section of garden near Figtree Avenue turning circle, as a “Small Space” we entered into the spirit of the competition.

Unfortunately, although the judges were impressed, our entry didn't win, but received an Amgrow Hamper as an encouragement award presented along with the winners awards on Monday 7 December at Mortlake Public School.

Save Our Shelter

Cove residents Kerrie Lind and Vicki Mail are working towards a restoration grant for the bus shelter outside the Pavilion. The wooden shelter is historically significant to the Cove, having been used by Nestle employees when the factory produced chocolate here back in 1918. Originally it was part of the tram network that went down Great North Road to Leichhardt. The section from Abbotsford to Five Dock closed in 1954.

The shelter, which sits near the corner of Great North Road and Blackwall Point Road, has never had an upgrade and is slowly deteriorating. The light doesn't work, boards are missing and the paint is peeling.

Kerrie was appalled by the state of the shelter and contacted Vicki Mail of the Abbotsford Cove Community Association (ACCA) to see what could be done. The two of them approached Canada Bay Council and Burwood Bus depot, neither of which took ownership. They enlisted the help of Kate Higgins, Heritage Officer of Canada Bay Council and David Sansone, Local Studies Officer, at Five Dock Library to further pursue ownership and ultimately restoration.

The owner of the Pavilion has been contacted to discern if the shelter is part of his property. At time of printing no reply has been received. Hopefully, in the new year Kerrie and Vicki will receive a positive response from council re the heritage restoration grant, rewarding them for all their effort.

Water Feature Update

Just over a year ago power failed to the water feature and nearby lights on the foreshore near the fig tree. The existing cable could not be resuscitated. After reaching agreement with Greenway, ACCA was able to run a new power cable from the Greenway building to the distribution board near the flagpole.

Because of the power failure the small sump pumps that keep the control rooms dry, under the foreshore path, weren't working. As a result the control rooms flooded at least once in heavy rain, inundating the pump electric control boards.

Once the power was restored in mid November an electrician replaced the pumps, keeping cost to a minimum. Water Features Australia then drained and cleaned the ponds. Robertson's have now begun to patch the rendering in the waterfall pillars and bridges, applying a water resistant sealant to the pillars and a coating to the faces of the waterfalls to discourage further erosion.

It will then take about a week to refill the water feature. We hope to have it operating by Christmas.
